

AN EVERYDAY TRUST

One that Keeps Prices Constantly at the Top Notch.

Chickens, Eggs and Butter Bought, Stored and Shipped Away.

The price of eggs, chickens and produce of many descriptions is said to be regulated in this section by the three produce houses, one Armour's, another Swift's, and the Ohio Valley Co. The present high price of chickens and many other things is ascribed to the fact that these companies have unlimited capital, and with it purchase through their agencies, which radiate through village and precinct, all they can get their hands on. If there is no market here they send them elsewhere, and vast amounts are sent out every week to other places, thus keeping the supply here reduced and the prices high.

There is no remedy for this condition of affairs, it is stated on the market. The farmers and raisers in many instances get the benefit of the high prices charged on the market, but often they do not. It is said by many in a position to know that small spring chickens that now sell here for from 25 to 40 cents each are bought up from the farmers for 15 cents. Although it is said there have been raised this spring more chickens than ever known in this section, prices were never higher nor chickens more scarce.

Much of this stuff bought by the "trust" might never come to this market, and the enlarged demand for it is of course a benefit to the country and the raisers or producers. The "trusts" do not stop there, however, and buy only the surplus, but take everything in sight, including what would otherwise be brought to the market and sold in competition, and if the supply exceeds the demand they store the produce in their cold storage. The result is limited demand and high prices on the local market, but thus far no plan has been devised by which relief may be afforded.

NOTHING MISSED

BUT THIEVES WENT THROUGH MR. PAT LALLY'S RESIDENCE.

Thieves entered the residence of Mr. Pat Lally, at Tenth and Trimble streets, yesterday afternoon between 3 and 4 o'clock and went through every drawer and closet in the building but taking nothing, as far as can be discovered, but one bottle of perfume.

Mr. Lally and family reside over the Biederman grocery store, formerly operated by Mr. Lally, and had left the house yesterday afternoon. In the absence of the family the theft was committed, the intruders breaking into the lattice door and entering through a bath room window. Mr. Lally has searched throughout the house but fails to find anything of value gone. He thinks the thieves were boys as two boys were seen to leave the yard in company with a man, about 4 o'clock that afternoon but nothing was thought of this as men often come in the grocery yard.

CONDUCTORS' HOME

LOOKOUT INN MAY BE SECURED BY OFFICIALS OF THE O. R. C.

Chattanooga, June 1—The Order of Railway Conductors is investigating several sites in this section for a home for disabled conductors, which the organization proposes to build or buy. Two years ago this matter was taken up and negotiations begun for the purchase of Lookout Inn, but no progress was made. At the meeting just held in Pittsburgh a new committee was appointed, and instructed to secure a proper building or site. J. W. Miller, an official of the order, was here this week and will return next week to pursue negotiations. It is understood that they desire to purchase Lookout Inn, but they have several other places in the vicinity in view.

Decorated Americans Have Company. Seems to be no end of the list of titles in Germany. Grand Duke of Hess has just conferred the hereditary title of court marbleon on the mason who reconstructed the ducal bathroom, while the Prince Regent of Bavaria has a royal sewer-maker and a court motorist. The imperial white wingist and the grand ducal boozologist are prob'ly on the way. These things greatly enhance the value of Col. Partridge's decoration.—New York Telegram.

RIP IN PETTICOATS.

A FRENCH WOMAN SLEEPS TWENTY YEARS AND DIES.

Paris, June 1—Marguerite Boyenal of Thellies, near San Quentin, who has been in a cataleptic state since May 21, 1883, awakened Wednesday. For some time past she had been suffering from phthisis, and it is believed the effects of this malady on her system conduced to her reawakening.

She moved her hand on Saturday for the first time and groaned slightly. When Dr. Chartier took hold of her arm she said, "You are pinching me," and subsequently replied to questions by "yes" and "no." She was, however, in a state of great weakness and gradually sank, dying the day after awakening.

Marguerite Boyenal's lethargy was caused by fright. She had had a child, which died shortly after its birth under circumstances which led to the opening of a judicial legislation. One day in May, 1883, while Marguerite was ironing, a neighbor said to her:

"The gendarmes are coming to arrest you."

Marguerite had a series of fits, and gradually fell into her long slumber.

In 1896 the girl was described as being white as a statue and corpse-like as a mummy, and her bones seemed to be covered with parchment instead of skin. The body was rigid, and only the pulse beats showed that she was alive. Life was sustained by washing the girl's body in milk every day, and pouring a few drops of milk or spirits into the sleeper's mouth through a needle. The mother allowed anyone to see her for small fee. Many prominent physicians visited the patient during her twenty years' sleep.

ALASKAN GOLD.

OUTPUT OF YUKON MAY AMOUNT TO ABOUT $3,000,000.

Dawson, Alaska, June 1—Never before in the history of banking in Dawson have there been such heavy purchases of gold dust as yesterday and today. The amounts purchased by the two banks here, in connection with the large amounts deposited for safe keeping, will aggregate upwards of $1,250,000.

Present indications are that the Yukon output of gold this season will exceed that of last year by from $1,000,000 to $3,000,000.

A moral wave has been in progress for some time, resulting in a great scattering of gamblers.

Superstitious.

"This is the third time you've been arrested and brought before me for drunkenness, isn't it?" asked the irate justice.

"Yes, judge, it is, but it's all on account o' my superstitions, judge."

"How so?"

"Well, whenever I see spirits I always try to down 'em."

"So this is the third time you've been arrested for being superstitious? Well, I'll bust another superstition by giving you 30 days in jail, thus proving that there's no 'luck in odd numbers.'

CONSTIPATED BOWELS.

To have good health, the body should be kept in a laxative condition, and the bowels moved at least once a day, so that all the poisonous wastes are expelled daily. Mr. G. L. Edwards, 142 N. Main street, Wichita, Kan., writes: "I have used Herbine to regulate the liver and bowels for the past ten years, and found it a reliable remedy." Price 50c. Sold by DuBois, Kolb & Co.

ANTHONY HOPE TO WED.

London, June 1—Anthony Hope, novelist and playwright, is to marry Elizabeth Sheldon of George Alexander's company, whose engagement to wed Henry Ainsley of the same company was announced last week. As yet no formal announcement has been made, and none, except a few of the intimates of Mr. Hope and Miss Sheldon in London, knows of it.

TAX ON BABIES.

Extreme hot weather is a great tax upon the digestive power of babies; when puny and feeble they should be given a few doses of White's Oream Vermifuge, the children's tonic. It will stimulate and facilitate the digestion of their food, so that they soon become strong, healthy and active.

APPLAUSED HIS OWN SPEECH.

A GOOD JOKE ON HIMSELF TOLD BY SENATOR SMOOT OF UTAH.

Although Senator Reed Smoot of Utah resided in Washington less than a fortnight during the recent session he did not escape the anecdote craze. The scene of the best story he told was laid in the southern part of the Mormon state, which is settled largely by Scandinavians.

She moved her hand on Saturday for the first time and groaned slightly. When Dr. Chartier took hold of her arm she said, "You are pinching me," and subsequently replied to questions by "yes" and "no." She was, however, in a state of great weakness and gradually sank, dying the day after awakening.

"Well," he replied, "you may be interested to know that he's translating your speech. None of these people understand English." —New York Sun.

VERY VILE

ONE OF THE YOUNGER WILD WEST FEATURES GETS A HOT ROAST.

The Younger-James Wildwest, which was formerly Buckskin Bill's Wildwest, of Paducah, is coming in for some hot roasts. The Jackson, Tenn., Sun says:

"A Jackson man who attended one of the side shows of the Younger-James Wild West says it was the vilest thing he ever witnessed. He says the language used by a slight of hand performer before the ladies was something awful, and that had he had a lady with him he would have gone out and got a gun and filled the fellow full of holes. The side show included, at extra cost, of course, one of the most depraved hoochie coochie dances ever seen in a respectable community."

A NOVELTY

STEAMBOAT LINE BEGINS SERVING LUNCHEONS EN ROUTE.

The Lee line of steamers between St. Louis and Memphis has inaugurated a novelty, beginning yesterday. It serves luncheons each day at 11 a. m. and 4 p. m. to passengers, in addition to the regular meals. It is an innovation to the tourists, who seem to be big eaters.

HOT WEATHER WEAKNESS.

If you feel fagged out, listless and lacking in energy, you are perhaps suffering from the debilitating effects of summer weather. These symptoms indicate that a tonic is needed that will create a healthy appetite, make digestion perfect, regulate the bowels and impart natural activity to the liver. This, Herbine will do, it is a tonic, laxative and restorative. H. J. Freegard, Proprietor, Grand View Hotel, Cheney, Kan., writes: "I have used Herbine for the last 12 years, and nothing on earth can beat it. It was recommended to me by Dr. Newton, Newton, Kan." 50c at DuBois, Kolb & Co.

Strong Talk on Tuberculosis.

Dr. S. A. Knopf of New York, one of the leading American authorities on tuberculosis, makes the somewhat startling announcement that he considers certain conditions in the business offices and homes of the wealthy as being quite as bad as those found in tenements. Dr. Knopf's essay on "Tuberculosis as a Disease of the Masses" was awarded first prize at the international medical congress in Berlin and has been translated into many languages.

AFTER TEN YEARS

Peace is Declared Between Hostile Bodies.

N. C. and St. L. Makes Friends with the Brotherhood of Firemen.

Nashville, Tenn., June 1—A reconciliation has been effected between the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railroad and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen after an estrangement of ten years. The Brotherhood was placed under the ban at the time of the Pullman trouble for the reason that many of its members violated their contract by going out on a sympathetic strike. All of them were discharged and none has since been employed.

According to the chroniclers Mr. Smoot is not much of a politician, nor yet a Daniel Webster when it comes to oratory. He was assigned by his Republican central committee, therefore, to deliver his maiden effort before the foreigners in a Southern Utah village. His advent had been widely heralded and the hall in which the meeting was to be held was crowded with swarthy Swedish farmers when Mr. Smoot turned on his eloquence.

The applause was not all that he had expected. Only one person, an old man on the front row, seemed exceptionally interested. He applauded wildly, laughed at all the speaker's jokes and manifested every sign of excited appreciation. After Mr. Smoot had finished his enthusiastic oration arose to speak. Feeling grateful, the senator determined to show his appreciation in like manner. The old man's remarks were entirely in Swedish, which was, to Mr. Smoot, denser than Greek; but, not to be outdone, Mr. Smoot followed the inflection of the speaker's voice and whenever he thought a climax was reached led the applause wildly.

"I cheered and stamped on the floor in a most undignified manner," said Mr. Smoot in relating the story, "and I was at a loss to understand the curious looks centered upon me. Finally a man sitting behind leaned forward and inquired if I understood the speaker.

"Not a word," I confessed, "but it's a good speech, isn't it?"

"Well," he replied, "you may be interested to know that he's translating your speech. None of these people understand English." —New York Sun.

STARS AND STRIPES

L. C. CONDUCTORS HAVE NEW ORNAMENTS NOW.

The Illinois Central passenger conductors now wear gold bands on their coat sleeves, and many questions are asked as to the reason thereof. They tell how many years the conductor has been in the company's employ, each band representing a year, and for the old men a star is occasionally added, which means five years for each star. In this way the public can tell how long a man has been in the service.

A SPLENDID REMEDY.

A Jackson man who attended one of the side shows of the Younger-James Wild West says it was the vilest thing he ever witnessed. He says the language used by a slight of hand performer before the ladies was something awful, and that had he had a lady with him he would have gone out and got a gun and filled the fellow full of holes. The side show included, at extra cost, of course, one of the most depraved hoochie coochie dances ever seen in a respectable community."

Spent Treating Daughter For Fits.

Never Had Attack After Taking

Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine.

The most frequent cause of epilepsy or falling fits is an inherited tendency to nervous disease. Chronic headache in parents is the most common cause of fits in the offspring, and strong relationship is shown, by the effects of treatment, between headache and epilepsy. Dr. Miles' Nervine has a wonderful record of cures of this terrible malady. Read the following:

"A few years ago I became interested in Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine through reading a small book published by Dr. Miles Medical Co. My daughter, May Ellis, had been troubled with falling fits for four years. I read in the book of a daughter of Mr. A. B. Read, of Piatka, Fla., that had been cured of fits, and I sent for verification of the same. Upon receipt of his letter I began the use of the Nervine for my child who has never had an attack since the second dose was given her. Prior to the use of the Restorative Nervine I had spent more than eight hundred dollars with different physicians for treatment of my little girl and received no benefit whatever. I used in all seven bottles of the Nervine and they were worth more to us than the eight hundred dollars spent prior to their use. The Restorative Nervine is in my opinion the finest nerve medicine in the world and I cheerfully recommend its use to all suffering from nervous disorders of any kind." —L. W. ELLIS, Carrollton, Ga.

ARE YOU LOSING WEIGHT?

Are You Losing Weight?

It so then your system is out of balance, and there is a flaw somewhere in your constitution, and a possibility that you are losing health, too. The falling off in weight may be slight, but it makes a wonderful change in one's looks and feelings, and unless the building up process is begun in time, vitality and strength are soon gone and health quickly follows. If you are losing weight there is a cause for it. Your blood is deteriorating and becoming too poor to properly nourish the body, and it must be purified and enriched before lost weight is regained. It requires something more than an ordinary tonic to build up a feeble constitution, for unless the poisons and germs that are lurking in the blood are destroyed, they will further impoverish the blood and weaken the system, and you continue to lose weight.

In S. S. S. will be found purifying and tonic properties combined.

WONDERFUL GAIN IN WEIGHT.

Huntsville, Ala., Jan. 10, 1903.

Some years ago my general health gave way; my nervous system was shattered, and I could get nothing to do me any good till I began to use S. S. S. I commenced to improve at once. My appetite became splendid and from 135 pounds I increased to 180. I became well again by taking S. S. S. and would take no amount for the good it did me. My health is now perfect, and I believe if everybody would take a bottle of S. S. S. occasionally, they would enjoy life as I am doing. W. L. WINSTON.

SSS

stimulates all the bodily organs, and persons of delicate constitutions can take S. S. S. with safety, as it does not derange the Stomach like the strong mineral remedies, but acts gently and without any shock to the system. Those whose feelings tell them they are not strong or well, and who are growing thinner and failing below their usual weight, should take a course of S. S. S. and build up again. S. S. S. is recognized everywhere as the leading blood purifier and the safest and best of all tonics. We cheerfully furnish medical advice, without charge, to all who will write us.

MATERIAL FOR TRUST BUSTER.

People who go to market every morning and wonder why chickens, eggs and a few other things are so high, possibly do not know that it is because of a kind of "trust" that they hear very little about, especially from the able Democratic statesmen and press who are constantly inveigling against the salt trust, the beef trust, the hard coal trust, and other trusts that seldom have the slightest effect on them and this section of the country. The trust at our door, however, is seldom mentioned. This trust is in the poultry and produce business as told in the news columns elsewhere. Agents are sent to various parts of a section, many having regular stations, and buy up all the chickens, eggs, butter and other things that they can find. The farmers, not desiring to come all the way to town, readily sell, as they get a good price. The produce and poultry are taken to the headquarters of the company here or elsewhere and prepared for the market, where they are sold at the trust's figures, or shipped to the big cities, where there is always a demand at any price they ask.

The effect of this trust is that the enables we would otherwise get on the market here at a reasonable figure can not be purchased at all, or else at an exorbitant price. It reduces the marketable supply of everything handled by the "trust" and as a consequence boosts prices. It makes the supply totally inadequate to the demands of our people here. The trust itself pretends to feel hurt because it is accused of impairing the welfare of the people. It boasts about stimulating the farmer to raise more chickens and such things than he would otherwise raise, and thus afford a larger and better market, and then brings them all up for its own uses.

Even if the "trust" makes things better for the few people who raise chickens and produce, only about one out of 500, if that many, raise such things, leaving five hundred to eat where one raises. The farmer who raises may get a good price and deserve all he can get but the five hundred who have to eat have to pay dearly for it and are also entitled to some consideration. The present conditions present a serious problem, but there is apparently no way to remedy it. It is a matter that affects the welfare, the pocketbook and the stomach of hundreds of people and is therefore a good subject for the local "trust busters" to work on.

The Democratic executive committee is having a hard time whipping the revolting forces into line, but it has adopted a resolution indorsing the chairman, and the chairman has had things his own way ever since the trouble started. If there is any harmony in the Democratic party this year, the kickers will have to acknowledge defeat, and they seem to have no disposition to do it just now. One prominent Democratic office holder remarked in the presence of several persons a few days ago on legal row, "If you Republicans beat us this year I don't think it will take a lot of us long to get over it."

Beaver Dam, Ky., is sadly afflicted with either an unusually enterprising correspondent or else a lot of plagues of various descriptions. Three separate dispatches sent out Saturday state that the snakes are more numerous than ever before, the grasshoppers are so thick that they eat the tobacco as fast as it is planted and the worms are visible in such numbers that they almost obscure the foliage on the trees. The governor ought to be consulted about sending troops there to suppress the "varmints"—or the correspondent.

It is rumored that the reason some of the main witnesses for the prosecution in Breathitt cannot be found is that they prefer a whole skin at a distance to witnessing a hanging of the feudists at close quarters. Sometimes even justice loses its charms.

Doubtless it was a wise father who cut off his son, a member of the Missouri legislature, with $5. He evidently thought his offspring was already well heeled.

More Soldiers Arrive—Jett Believed to Be Weakening.

REDWINE CHARGED JURY.

Jackson, Ky., June 1.—The regular term of circuit court began here today, and Judge Redwine delivered a vigorous charge to the grand jury. The special grand jury at Jackson adjourned Saturday after returning an indictment against Curtis Jett charging him with the murder of Jim Cockrell. The principal witness in the Cockrell case was Capt. John Patrick, who went to the grand jury room escorted by a detail of soldiers. He told the jury that at the time Cockrell was assassinated he saw the rifle protruding from the court house window. He recognized Curtis Jett at the window, but did not see the faces of the other men. Thomas Marcus of Indian Territory, a brother of the late J. B. Marcus, has arrived at Jackson to assist in the prosecution of the alleged assassins of his brother. Commonwealth's Attorney Byrd says he is satisfied with the work of the special grand jury. He also says the Marcus case will be further investigated by the regular grand jury, which was impaneled today. The militia from Danville and Louisville arrived Sunday and about 175 soldiers are now at Jackson.

It is the opinion of many that Tom White and Curtis Jett are weakening and will both soon tell all they know about the assassinations of Jim Cockrell, Dr. Cox and J. B. Marcus. The men are both allowed to occupy the same cell, strange to say, and were standing looking out of a window yesterday, though no one was near, and Jett is reported to have told White that "he would not hang by himself by a d—d sight." White replied: "It'll do us no good, for we can't get out by telling on others, and then people would not believe us." Jett then said: "Well, they are as deep in the mud as we are in the mire, and by God if it comes to a showdown you may depend upon me to take the other fellows along too."

CAT LIVES IN ICE HOUSE

And Seems to Enjoy Low Temperature of the Place.

In one of Philadelphia's big cold storage warehouses, says the Record of that city, is a cat that lives constantly in a temperature of ten degrees above zero, winter and summer. Moreover she seems to like it, and on the rare occasions when she is removed to the outer air she runs and scratches at the door to get back again. Rats and mice also live and thrive in that temperature, which is the secret of the cat's presence there. "We put her in the compartment that registers 30 degrees originally," said the manager of the warehouse the other day. "We had been overrun with rodents, and we turned the cat loose as an experiment. She seemed to like it, and when we moved her to the colder temperature, it had no ill effect upon her. It would be interesting to know at just how low a temperature a cat could sustain life."

Useful Thanksgiving Presents. Instead of giving the fifty employees on her estate at Tarrytown Thanksgiving presents of turkeys this year Miss Helen Gould, on account of the high price of coal, presented each with a barrel of kerosene, a large kerosene stove, a barrel of potatoes, 100 pounds of bacon and a barrel of flour.

In conclusion Rev. Jones dwelt on his life work, saying that he was now breaking down and would soon be gone, but that he had one cheering thought, and this was the work he had done and the good worked on hundreds of persons in the country. He had been preaching for thirty-one years and during the past few years has been gradually breaking down. He said in regard to Paducah's officials that if they were his from mayor down he would trade them off for a yaller dog, kill the dog and still be ahead, for the hide would be worth

Wood Toothpicks, Skewers and Reels.

One of the first wood mills established in Maine was to manufacture wooden toothpicks. A small machine was invented, which at present gives an annual output of 500 millions of toothpicks. They are made of the smallest pieces of waste wood, the cost of the raw material being practically nothing. The wooden skewers used by butchers are manufactured at the rate of a half million a week. One mill alone turns out in the summer season five million skewers and fifty million toothpicks, besides a number of other articles. Reels for cotton and thread are manufactured at the rate of 250 millions a year. For this output more than fifteen million feet of white birch is needed.

were four other drummers and three heavy sample trucks on the little gas-turned the craft over and sent it to the bottom. All managed to swim to shore but the trucks were lost. The tug has since been raised.

WHAT IS NEXT.

And our school board's in a muddle.
Slipping down the misty way—
Right alone can quell the trouble,
So we'll let it rest today.

We think it best not to discuss a question so calculated to arouse the people's indignation and resentment, believing the board will rectify mistakes. Therefore we pass quickly to other matters more pleasing and profitable to the reader, viz:

CAUTION!

This is not a gentle word—but when you think how liable you are not to purchase the only remedy universally known and a remedy that has had the largest sale of any medicine in the world since 1868 for the cure and treatment of consumption and throat and lung troubles without losing its great popularity all these years, you will be thankful we called your attention to Boschee's German syrup. There are so many ordinary cough remedies made by druggists and others that are cheap and good for light colds perhaps, but for severe coughs, bronchitis, croup—and especially for consumption, where there is difficult expectoration and coughing during the nights and mornings, there is nothing like German Syrup. The 25 cents size has just been introduced this year.
Regular size 75 cents. At all drugrists.

COURSES AT CHINESE DINNER.

Wondrous Edibles Served at San Fran- cisco Banquet.

At a Chinese dinner given in San Francisco in honor of Mrs. Robert Louis Stevenson these were among the queer things served: Bird's nest soup came in four different courses. According to one guest, it was transparent, tasteless, utterly uninviting and more like wallpaper paste than anything else.

Chinese nuts took the place of salted almonds. Then there were dried eels sliced in chicken broth, sharks cooked in a dozen ways and served in several courses, "lotus flower," consisting of a slice of fat pork, a slice of dried duck and a piece of preserved watermelon, so arranged that one could take a bit of all three at once; dried mushrooms, turtles, preserved ducks' eggs, shark's air bladders in oil, abalone meat, a dainty worth its weight in gold, being a tiny part of a little sea animal; the web of duck's feet, duck which had been baked, stuffed with mushrooms and steamed, and almond gruel.

Four Thousand Godfathers.

Princess Irene of Prussia is better provided for in the matter of godfathers than any other woman in the world. She can boast of no fewer than 4,000 godfathers, and how she came to obtain so many is a pretty story.

When she was born the war of 1866 was drawing to an end, and peace being concluded just at the time of her christening, her father, Prince Henry of Hess, requested all the officers and men of the regiment under his command to stand godfathers to his little daughter, whom he named Irene (Pearce) in commemoration of the end of the war.

Will you have a piece of Toby, my dear?"

"Well, sir, she just looked at me for a moment, and then she burst out crying and ran away from the table. But when I went after her and asked her what was the matter she stopped crying and was mad in a minute all the way through. Called me a heartless, cruel cannibal. That seemed to relieve her so that she got over her mad and began to cry again. Begged me to take Toby out of pickle and to bury him in the garden. I reasoned with her, and in the end I made her see that any obsequies for Toby, with pork at 8 cents a pound, would be a pretty expensive funeral for us. But first and last she had managed to take my appetite away so that I didn't want any roast pork for dinner or cold pork for supper."

That night I took what was left of Toby to a storekeeper at the Crossing, who I knew would be able to gaze on his hams without bursting into tears, and got a pretty fair price for him.

I simply mention Toby in passing as an example of why I believe women weren't cut out for business—at least for the pork packing business. I've had dealings with a good many of them, first and last, and it's been my experience that when they've got a weak case they add their sex to it and win, and that when they've got a strong case they subtract their sex from it and deal with you harder than a man. They're simply bound to win either way, and I don't like to play a game where I haven't any show. When a clerk makes a fool break, I don't want to beg his pardon for calling his attention to it, and I don't want him to blush and tremble and leak a little leather pretty hard.

"Same with people. Some of them do three days' work in one day, and three hours' work the rest of the week. When they're tested, they go soft, and the silver-steel can't save them, because there's too much silver and not enough steel. A half hour on the stone makes a good razor better, but it kills a poor one. I'm always suspicious of a new razor that makes too much noise when I try it. I find people just about the same as razors, and I've got so now I'm a pretty good judge of both.

"Not too close? All right, sir!"—New York Press.

Not Entitled to Rebate.

A Mount Vernon clergyman told his flock the following story recently to illustrate his opposition to the granting of cut rates or special privileges to men of the cloth.

"I once knew a clergyman," he said, "who found himself out on a lark with a party of men about town. He played billiards, and ate and drank with the others and held his end up in all respects until it came time to settle. Then he leaned over the bar and whispered to the bartender: 'Say, I'm a minister, and if there is any reduction in my case, why I'd be glad to have it, you know.'

"Say, youse," replied the bartender, "you played billiards like a heathen an' ate like a heathen an' drank like a heathen. Now, I wants youse to pay like a heathen!"—New York Sun.

Woman In Business

As Illustrated by the Pathetic Story of Toby

From "Letters From a Self Made Merchant to His Son," by George Horace Lorimer. By permission of Small, Maynard & Co., Publishers, Boston.

I never do business with a woman that I don't think of a little incident which happened when I was first married to your ma. We set up housekeeping in one of those cottages that you read about in the story books, but that you want to shy away from when it's put up to you to live in one of them. It was just the place to go for a picnic, but it's been my experience that a fellow does most of his picnicking before he's married.

Your ma did the cooking and I hustled for things to cook, though I would take a shy at it myself once in awhile and get up my muscle tossing flapjacks. It was pretty rough sailing, you bet, but one way and another we managed to get a good deal of satisfaction out of it, because we had made up our minds to take our fun as we went along. With most people happiness is something that is always just a day off. But I have made it a rule never to put off being happy till tomorrow.

I was clerking in a general store at that time, but I had a little weakness for live stock even then, and while I couldn't afford to plunge in it exactly I managed to buy a likely little shote that I reckoned on carrying through with a bill for board in the fall. He was just a plain pig when he came to us, and we kept him in a little sty, but we weren't long in finding out that he wasn't any ordinary root and grunt pig. The first I knew your ma was calling him Toby and had turned him loose. Answered to his name like a dog. Never saw such a sociable pig. Wanted to sit on the porch with us. Tried to come into the house evenings. Used to run down the road squealing for joy when he saw me coming home from work.

Well, it got on toward November, and Toby had been making the most of his opportunities. I never saw a pig that turned corn into fat so fast, and the stouter he got the better his disposition grew. I reckon I was attached to him myself in a sort of a sneaking way, but I was mighty fond of hog meat, too, and we needed Toby in the kitchen. So I sent around and had him butchered.

When I got home to dinner next day, I noticed that your ma looked mighty solemn as she set the roast of pork down in front of me, but I strayed off, thinking of something else as I carved, and my wits were off woolgathering sure enough when I said:

"Will you have a piece of Toby, my dear?"

"Well, sir, she just looked at me for a moment, and then she burst out crying and ran away from the table. But when I went after her and asked her what was the matter she stopped crying and was mad in a minute all the way through. Called me a heartless, cruel cannibal. That seemed to relieve her so that she got over her mad and began to cry again. Begged me to take Toby out of pickle and to bury him in the garden. I reasoned with her, and in the end I made her see that any obsequies for Toby, with pork at 8 cents a pound, would be a pretty expensive funeral for us. But first and last she had managed to take my appetite away so that I didn't want any roast pork for dinner or cold pork for supper."

That night I took what was left of Toby to a storekeeper at the Crossing, who I knew would be able to gaze on his hams without bursting into tears, and got a pretty fair price for him.

I simply mention Toby in passing as an example of why I believe women weren't cut out for business—at least for the pork packing business. I've had dealings with a good many of them, first and last, and it's been my experience that when they've got a weak case they add their sex to it and win, and that when they've got a strong case they subtract their sex from it and deal with you harder than a man. They're simply bound to win either way, and I don't like to play a game where I haven't any show. When a clerk makes a fool break, I don't want to beg his pardon for calling his attention to it, and I don't want him to blush and tremble and leak a little leather pretty hard.

A little change is a mighty soothing thing, and I like a woman's ways too much at home to care very much for them at the office. Instead of hiring women I try to hire their husbands, and then I usually have them both working for me. There's nothing like a woman at home to spur on a man at the office.

Winter Joys.

Now is the season when the young man rolls up his trousers at the bottom and seeks the house of a maid where there is a fireplace. Summer in a hammock is bliss, but winter by the side of a pink and white girl with kind eyes seems to be more attractive. There is always the fire to poke up when the conversation grows dimmer than the light.—Oregonian.

so the office did not know that he was in town until the next day, and then to no great extent.

For several hours he reveled in her society, sitting beside her in that roomy brougham. Aunt Yvonne opposite, explaining to her the many places of interest as they passed.

Their dinner was but one more phase of this fascinating dream. More than once he feared that he was about to awake to find bleak unhappiness where exquisite joy had reigned so gloriously. As it drew to an end a sense of depression came over him. An hour at most was all that he could have with her. Nine o'clock was drawing nigh with its regrets, its longings, its desolation. He determined to retain the pleasures of the present until, amid the clanging of bells and the roll of car wheels, the dismal future began. His intention to accompany them to the station was expressed as they were leaving the table. She had begun to say goodby to him when he interrupted, self consciously forcing the words hurriedly and disjointedly from his lips:

"I shall be engaged during the entire day, Mr. Lorry," she said slowly, looking him fairly in the eyes with cruel persistency. For a moment he dared not speak.

"I have reason to feel thankful that you are to be engaged," he said at last calmly, without taking his eyes from hers. "I am forced to believe, much to my regret, that I have offended when I intended to please. You will pardon my temerity."

There was no mistaking the resentment in his voice or the glitter in his eyes. Impulsively her little hand was stretched forth, falling upon his arm, while into her eyes came again the soft glow and to her lips the most pathetic, appealing smile, the forerunner of a pretty plea for forgiveness. The change startled and puzzled him more than ever. In one moment she was unreasonably rude and imperious, in the next gracious and imploring.

"Forgive me," she cried, the blue eyes burning bravely against the steel in the gray ones above. "I was so uncivil! Perhaps I cannot make you understand why I spoke as I did, but, let me say, I richly deserved the rebuke. Pray forgive me and forget that I have been disagreeable. Do not ask me to tell you why I was so rude to you just now, but overlook my unkind treatment of your invitation. Please, Mr. Lorry, I beg of you—I beg for the first time in my life. You have been so good to me, be good to me still."

His wrath melted away like snow before the sunshine. How could he resist such an appeal? "I beg for the first time in my life," whirled in his brain. What did she mean by that?

"I absolve the penitent," he said gravely.

"I thank you. You are still my ideal American—courteous, bold and gentle. I do not wonder that Americans can be masterful men. And now I thank you for your invitation and ask you to let me withdraw my implied refusal. If you will take me for the drive I shall be delighted and more than grateful."

"You make me happy again," he said softly, as they drew near the elder members of the party, who had paused to wait for them. "I shall ask your uncle and aunt to accompany us."

"Uncle Caspar will be busy all day, but I am sure my aunt will be charmed. Aunt Yvonne, Mr. Lorry has asked us to drive with him over the city, and I have accepted for you. When are we to start, Mr. Lorry?"

Mr. and Mrs. Guggenlocher stared in a bewildered sort of manner at their niece. Then Aunt Yvonne turned questioning eyes toward her husband, who promptly bowed low before the tall American and said:

"Your kind offices shall never be forgotten, sir. When are the ladies to be ready?"

Lorry was weighing in his mind the advisability of asking them to dine in the evening with his mother, but two objections presented themselves readily—first, he was afraid of this perverse maid; second, he had not seen his mother. In fact, he did not know that she was in town.

"At 2 o'clock, I fancy. That will give us the afternoon. You leave at 9 to-night, do you not?"

"Yes. And will you dine with us this evening?" Her invitation was so unexpected in view of all that had happened that he looked askance. "Ach, you must not treat my invitation as I did yours!" she cried merrily, although he could detect the blush that returns with the recollection of a reprimand.

"You should profit by what I have been taught." The girl abruptly threw her arm about her aunt and cried as she drew away in the direction of her room: "At 2, then, and at dinner this evening. I bid you good morning, Mr. Lorry."

The young man, delighted with the turn of affairs, but dismayed by what seemed a summary dismissal, bowed low. He waited until the strange trio entered the elevator and then sauntered downstairs, his hands in his pockets, his heart as light as air.

In an hour he was at home and relating to his mother the story of his wanderings, neglecting for reasons best known to himself the events which occurred after Denver had been left behind, except for a casual allusion to "a party of foreigners." At 1 o'clock, faultlessly attired, he descended to the brougham, telling Mrs. Lorry that he had invited some strangers to see the city. On the way downtown he remembered that he was in business—the law business—and that it would be well to drop in and let his uncle know he was in the city. On second thought, however, he concluded it was too near 2 o'clock to waste any time on business.

"Not as I have been since?" he cried.

"Have you changed since first I saw you?" she asked quaintly.

"I have, indeed, for you saw me before I saw you. I am glad I have not changed for the worse in your eyes."

"As I first knew you with my eyes I will say that they are trustworthy," she said tantalizingly.

"I do not mean that I have changed externally."

"In any other case my eyes would not serve," she cried, with mock disappointment. "Still," she added sweepingly, "you are my ideal American. Goodby! The man has called 'all aboard'!"

"Goodby!" he cried, swinging up on the narrow step beside her. Again he clasped her hand as she drew back in surprise. "You are going out of my land, but not out of my mind. If you wish your eyes to see the change in me, you have only to look at them in a mirror. They are the change—they themselves! Goodby! I hope that I may see you again."

She hesitated an instant, her eyes wavering beneath his. The train was moving slowly now.

"I pray that we may meet," she said softly at last—so softly that he barely heard the words. Had she uttered no sound he could have been sure of her response, for it was in her telltale eyes. His blood leaped madly. "You will be hurt if you wait till the train is running at full speed!" she cried, suddenly returning to the abandoned merry mood. She pushed him gently in her excitement. "Don't you see how rapidly we are moving? Please go!" There was a terror in her eyes that pleased him.

"Goodby, then!" he said.

"Adieu, my American!" she cried quickly.

As he swung out ready to drop to the ground she said, her eyes sparkling with something that suggested mischief, her face more bewitching than ever under the flicker of the great arc lights:

"You must come to Edelweiss to see me. I shall expect you!" He thought there was a challenge in the tones. Or was it mockery?

"I will, by heaven, I will!" he exclaimed.

A startled expression flashed across her face, and her lips parted as if in protestation. As she leaned forward, holding stoutly to the handrail, there was no smile on her countenance.

A white hand fluttered before his eyes, and she was gone. He stood, hat in hand, watching the two red lights at the end of the train until they were lost in the night.

CHAPTER V.

SENTIMENTAL EXCHANGE.

If Lorry slept that night, he was not aware of it. All night long he tossed and thought. Her voice was everywhere. Her voice filled his ear with music never ceasing, but it was not the lulling music that invites drowsiness. He heard the clock strike the hours from 1 to 8, when he arose, thoroughly disgusted with himself. He worshipped his mother, but in several instances that morning he caught himself just in time to prevent the utterance of some sharp rejoinder to her pleasant, motherly queries. Twice she was compelled to repeat questions, his mind being so far away that he heard nothing save words that another woman had uttered, say, twenty-four hours before. His eyes were red, and there was a heavy droop to the lids. His tones were drawling and his voice strangely without warmth. His face was white and tired.

"You are not well, Grenfall," his mother said, peering anxiously into his eyes. "The trip has done you up. Now, you must take a good, long rest and recover from your vacation."

"He sleeps well," she said.

"A man never needs a rest so much as he does at the end of his vacation, eh, mother? Well, work will be restful. I shall go to the office this morning and do three days' work before night. That will prove to you that I am perfectly well."

True to his intention, he went to the office early, virtuously inclined to work. His uncle greeted him warmly and a long conference over business affairs followed. To Lorry's annoyance and discomfiture he found himself frequently inattentive. Several important cases were pending, and in a day or two they were to go into court with a damage suit of more than ordinary consequence. Lorry senior could not repress his gratification over the return of his clever, active nephew at such an opportune time. He had felt himself unable to handle the case alone. The endurance of a young and vigorous mind was required for the coming battle in chancery.

They lunched together, the elder easier and confident, the other respectful and absentminded. In the afternoon the junior went over the case and renewed search for authorities and opinions, fully determined to be constant in spite of his inclination to be fickle. Late in the day he petulantly threw aside the books, curiously informed his astonished uncle that he was not feeling well, and left the office. Until dinner time he played billiards atrociously at his club; at dinner his mother sharply reproved him for flagrant naughtiness; after dinner he smoked and wondered despondently. Tomorrow she was to sail! If he could but see her once more!

At 7:30 his mother found him in the library searching diligently through the volume of the encyclopedia that contained the G's. When she asked what he was looking for, he laughed idiotically and in confusion informed her that he was trying to find the name of the most important city in Indiana. She was glancing at the books in the case when she was startled by hearing him utter an exclamation and then leap to his feet.

"Half past 7! I can make it!"

"What is the matter, Gren, dear?"

"Oh!" he ejaculated, bringing himself up with a start. "I forgot—er—yes, mother, I'll just have time to catch the train, you know. Will you kindly have Mary clean up this muss of books and so forth? I'm off, you see, to New York—for a day only, mother—back tomorrow! Important business—just remembered it, you know—ahem! Goodby, mother! Goodby!" He had kissed her and was in the hall before she fairly understood what he was talking about. Then she ran after him, gaining the hallway in time to see him pass through the street door, his hat on the side of his head, his overcoat fluttering furiously as he shoved his arms into the sleeves. The door slammed, and he was off to New York.

The "Style of a 'Dorothy Dodd'"

Let us assume that your shoes fit you. Now what next? What is most important? Unquestionably "Style!" Demand that a shoe shall possess "Style!" If it has style and little else you want it; if it has not style but everything else, you don't want it!

The "Style of a 'Dorothy Dodd'" is unique.

It cannot be duplicated by any other maker, because the "Dorothy Dodd" is a totally different construction from any other ladies' shoe made. It holds the foot firmly at the waist (that's the instep), prevents the toes from slipping forward, and thus gives a correct poise in walking. Yet it makes the foot look nearly a whole size smaller. That's curious, and you won't believe it till you see it.

Just for once try the "Style of a 'Dorothy Dodd'"

Sincerely yours,

Dorothy Dodd

FLAYED HIM ALIVE

me. I am not to make any race this year, but two years from November. If I were running for office, however, I should want Sam Jones to come here and take the stump against me. It would mean certain victory for me.

"Now I don't like to be abused by people who don't tell the truth about me. Sam Jones is one of these 'evangelists.' I don't know what 'evangelist' means. I haven't been able to decide exactly whether it means to make money or to preach for the salvation of souls. I notice, however, that the 'evangelists' are all pretty good money makers. They don't neglect the almighty dollar part of their work. In a few days I shall write an article on 'Paducah, Past, Present and Future,' and show in it that Sam Jones has deliberately misrepresented and maligned Paducah and her officers. I propose to show that there is no better city anywhere considering its population."

He asserted further that he had been in charge of the police court here about 35 years and knew what he was talking about, and didn't have to go to outsiders for information. That he came from Smithland, twelve miles away, and not from Cartersville, Ga., for which he was duly thankful. The trouble with Sam Jones, he said, and men of his ilk is that they want to destroy every man who does not think as they do and act as they want him to act. They give no one else credit for having minds and opinions of their own, nor of having a spark of goodness or honor if they happen not to agree with Sam Jones, et al.

The court concluded by saying that he had always discharged his duty as he believed was right and would continue to no matter how much he was abused or lied about. That he didn't propose to conform his methods to meet the demands of any narrow, fanatical class that harbors the idea that nothing is right but what they believe. He said in a few days he would read the paper on "Paducah" and possibly publish the answer he wrote to Sam Jones several years ago, which will still be good reading.

IN POLICE COURT.

A FEW CASES ONLY ON TODAY'S DOCKET.

Ernest Ozment, who has been in trouble here on numerous occasions before, was on the guest's bench in Judge Sanders' court today charged with stealing a watch from S.S. Chandler, of Iron Ore Hill, Lyon county, and selling it to George Wade as his own property some time ago. The two warrants are for petty larceny and obtaining money by false pretenses. Ozment was captured Saturday night in Cairo, and brought back last night. The case was continued until tomorrow.

Berry Howard, colored, but not from the mountains, was this morning fined $30 and costs for striking Maryland Jones with a rock.

Shon Long, Will Hunsby, and Charles Baker were fined $1 and costs for being drunk.

John Miller and Mary Jones were charged with immorality, and the man was fined $20 and the case against the other continued. They are strangers.

Judge Sanders announced that hereafter when cases in his court were submitted and a fine agreed on with the prosecuting attorney, it would not reduce the costs, but witnesses in attendance were entitled to their fees just the same, and could collect them.

COUNTY JOURT.

Albert Mayer has been appointed administrator of the estate of Ernest J. Mayer.

George Wormack, of Golconda, age 35, and Minnie Ford, of Golconda, age 22, were today licensed to wed. It will make the second marriage of both.

Nineteen marriage licenses, fourteen to white couples, were issued here during the past month by the county clerk. This is not up to the average.

WOULDN'T COME BACK—George Curd, colored, who broke out of the city prison several months ago when several negroes tunneled out, is under arrest at Cairo. He had several months to serve and when Captain Henry Bailey went after him and Ernest Ozment Saturday, Curd refused to come without a requisition, and it is not known whether or not one can be secured for him.

THE RAINFALL—The rainfall since Saturday has been one-half an inch.

Theatrical Notes.

There was no performance at the Casino, Wallace park, last night, owing to rain. The company instead rehearsed "Said Pasha," which will be sung tonight, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Mr. Mountjoy Walker, the leading comedian of the Boston Ideal company, will be seen in one of his best parts tonight. He never fails to create an abundance of mirth for the audience and is a favorite with all. Manager English is living up to his promise in giving the public the best in the operatic line and his efforts will no doubt be appreciated by a liberal patronage tonight and all succeeding performances.

STOLE CURIOSITIES

Tandy Reeves Broke into Former Chief Collins' Relics.

Was Arrested and There Is a Strong Case.

Tandy Reeves, colored, who has just served out a city prison sentence, was arrested this morning on the charge of obtaining money by false pretenses and will probably be sent to the penitentiary, as the evidence is strong against him.

Someone broke into the glass case containing a collection of knives, razors and other curiosities collected by Former Chief James Collins, and stole half a dozen pistols and other relics. One pistol was pawned to Ackerman, the second-hand dealer and pawnbroker, and Reeves was identified as the man who pawned the weapon. He was arrested and locked up to await the action of the court.

The case and contents were the property of Chief Collins and the relics were prized very highly by the ex-chief, who had collected the weapons for a period of ten or twelve years. Reeves has been to the penitentiary once or twice already.

NO SPECIAL TERM

SAYS CIRCUIT JUDGE HUSBANDS —PUBLIC PRINTER CASE APPEALED

The motion to set aside the judgment in the case of the News-Democrat Publishing company against W.H. Patterson, clerk of the city of Paducah, was overruled and an appeal granted.

M. M. Cooley, who had a smallpox claim against the county was given a judgment against fiscal court today compelling the court to hear his claim, to either reject or allow it. The court would not allow the claim or would not act in any way on it.

Judge Husbands has announced that there will be no special term of court.

POLICE REPORT

IT IS READY FOR THE COUNCIL MEETING TONIGHT.

The report of the chief of police for the arrests made during the past month has been made out and shows the following: Number of colored males arrested 66, colored females 11, a total of 77 colored arrests. White males 57, white females 8, a total of 65 white arrests 60, which with the 77 colored makes a total of 137 arrests for May.

The Kind That Won't Lose Shape

Did you ever notice how quick thin clothing loses its shape? It's because it is not made right. We overcome that fault in our Correct Summer Clothing—we've had it made a new way. The coats have a full shoulder, with hair-cloth stiffening down the front, that keeps them from breaking or losing shape. The pants have cuff bottoms, concealed buttons and belt straps, the cloth is thoroughly shrunk which overcomes bagging at the knee. There's no clothing like it for fit and style in Paducah.
